Dr. Vickie Gentry, dean of Northwestern State University’s College of Education, has been appointed to the Louisiana Reading Literacy Leadership Team. Team members were selected by Governor Bobby Jindall by recommendation from State Superintendent Paul G. Pastorek.

The team will meet three times in the coming academic year and will continue to work on the Louisiana Literacy Plan.

A poem by Julie Kane was included in the National Public Radio program “Writer’s Almanac,” hosted by Garrison Keillor. “Particle Physics” from Kane’s Jazz Funeral was broadcast on Sept. 16.

The Writer’s Almanac is a daily radio program produced by American Public Media (APM). In each program Keillor presents a list of cultural events and anniversaries, many associated with literary figures, then ends with the poetry reading. APM currently distributes the Crisis Leave Program hours depleted

Faculty and staff can consider donating hours to pool

The Crisis Leave Review Committee is seeking aid from the NSU community. The Committee does not have sufficient leave available in the pool for new requests, according to Yvette Williams, chairman.

“We’ve exhausted the current leave after the recommended approval of the most recent request,” she said. “We normally recommend approval of 176 hours of crisis leave time to applicants. This is the maximum allowable time that can be granted.”

Anyone accumulating annual leave may donate a minimum of 8 hours or a maximum of 16 hours per fiscal year. The Crisis Leave Program is a means of providing paid leave to an eligible employee who has experienced a catastrophic illness or injury to themselves or eligible family member. The program’s intent is to provide assistance to employees who, through no fault of their own, have insufficient appropriate accrued leave to cover the crisis leave period.

Anyone who needs a donation form should see their office manager. Only annual leave can be donated to the pool.

To date, 30 employees have been awarded crisis leave, totaling 4,347.5 hours, according to Brett Knecht, payroll supervisor.

For further info, the crisis leave policy is available in the policies and procedures manual.

The Technology, Research, and Economic Development (TRED) Division’s Office of Research and Sponsored Programs (ORSP) sponsored a two-day regional grants conference Sept. 15-16 at the Natchitoches Events Center (first day) and at the Friedman Student Union Building (second day). The official title of the conference was “NSU Regional Conference on Federal and State (LA) Grant Opportunities.” Seventy-five faculty members attended the first day of the conference, and 52 faculty members attended the second day. The non-duplicated count of faculty who participated both days was 94, representing institutions of higher education in Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Mississippi. Comments made by those who attended the conference were overwhelmingly positive.

The conference featured several federal-grant-program officers—including representatives from the National Science Foundation (NSF), the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), and the Grants Resource Center (GRC) of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU)—as well as BORSF-grant-program managers from the Louisiana Board of Regents. Also featured both days was a poster presentation collected by Dr. Betsy Cochran entitled “Sampler of Undergraduate Research at NSULA.” Faculty contributors to the student-research poster-presentations included Dr. Betsy Cochran, Dr. Gillian Rudd, Mr. Michael Matthews, Dr. Steven Gabrey, Dr. Julie Delabbio, and Dr. April French. The research of 39 NSU students was presented, all of whom were commended for their work in this Conference informs faculty on grant opportunities

Dr. Julie H. Ernstein, assistant professor of anthropology and coordinator of the undergraduate program in Heritage Resources, served as program chair for the first Louisiana Studies Conference, hosted at NSU on Sept. 26, which featured more than 40 presentations by scholars drawn from numerous disciplines.

Ernstein also presented a paper at that conference titled “Plant the Seed and Watch It Grow: From Collections Management, to Disaster Mitigation, to Heritage (Re) Interpretation at the Kate Chopin House/ Bayou Folk Museum (Cloutierville, LA).” Her presentation addressed ongoing interpretive planning work she is performing at the site that grew out of previous service-learning, disaster mitigation, and classroom projects resulting in an online Virtual Museum developed for this Cloutierville National Historic Landmark. Ernstein spoke about her project currently underway to develop an interpretive plan for the property’s owners (with grant assistance from the Cane River National Heritage Area) and how it has been inspired by her students’ considerable efforts at the site.

Dr. Norann Planchock, dean of the College of Nursing, was elected chair of the Nursing Supply and Demand Council (NSDC). As chair of NSDC, she will serve as a member of the Health Works Commission and as a member of the Executive Committee, which consists of five commissioners from Health Works.

The Health Works Commission was reestablished last year, by legislature, and placed under the Board of Regents. One of the responsibilities of the HWC is to recommend funding for capitation and stipend programs which benefit the nursing programs’ faculty and students.

Dr. Gerra Perkins, College of Education, and former NSU student Amy Foster Johnson recently had their article “What We Know About At-Risk Students: Important Considerations for Principal and Counselor Leadership” published in the June issue of the NASSP Bulletin. The article detailed the important role that middle school counselors play in meeting the needs of at-risk populations.

A review by Dr. Keith Dromm, associate professor of philosophy in the Louisiana Scholars’ College, of Kelly Dean Jolley’s The Concept ‘Horse’ Paradox and Wittgensteinian Conceptual Investigations (Ashgate) was published in the August 2009 issue of Philosophy in Review. Dr. Dromm’s book Wittgenstein on Rules and Nature (Continuum Books) was reviewed by Lars Hertzberg in Notre Dame Philosophical Reviews in July. Hertzberg described the book as “rich,” “thought-provoking,” and a “stimulating read.”

A paper written by Dr. Steven Gabrey, Biology Department, and colleagues from the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries was named Best Paper in the General Conservation category at this year’s annual meeting of the Louisiana Association of Professional Biologists, held in Lafayette in August.

The paper, titled Impacts of Nutria Removal on Food Habits of American Alligators in Louisiana, reported on the contents of over 450 alligator stomachs and appeared in the spring issue of the Southeastern Naturalist.

Dr. Henrietta Williams Pichon, assistant professor, Student Personnel Services, presented at the 35th Annual Louisiana Association for College and University Student Personnel Administrators (LACUSPA) at the Learning Center for Rapides Parish in Alexandria. Her presentation title was “Getting At-risk Students Involved in Civic Engagement: The Importance of Service Learning during Times of Economic Downtowns.” The service learning project was supported by the Learn and Serve America through the Louisiana and Kentucky Campus Compact.
The Northwestern State University School Counseling and Student Personnel Services programs will present a forum entitled “Making Schools Safer” on Monday, Oct. 12. A presentation by Michael Dorn, executive director of Safe Havens International, will address practical and inexpensive ways to improve school safety, security, emergency preparedness and school climate.

“Making Schools Safer” will cover topics that include bullying and cyberbullying, assessment-based approaches of school safety, practical school access control, improving student supervision and visitor management. Other topics will address improving school climate, emergency preparedness and 3-D school safety.

“We will have representatives from each school in Natchitoches Parish, but we are hoping educators in the surrounding parishes will be able to attend as well,” said Dr. Gerra Perkins, an organizer of the event. “We expect to have members of the community, law enforcement, parents, college students, teachers, school counselors, and administrators in attendance.”

Dorn heads a non-profit global school safety center and has worked in Central America, Mexico, Canada, Europe, Asia, South Africa and the Middle East. He has published 25 books on school safety. During his 25-year public safety career, Dorn served as a campus police officer, school district police chief, school safety specialist for the state of Georgia and later as the lead program manager of the Terrorism Division of the Georgia Office of Homeland Security.

A graduate of the FBI National Academy, Dorn has received extensive antiterrorism training in the United States and Israel. He has been featured in numerous school safety training videos in use around the globe and is regularly interviewed by national and international media organizations, including NPR, 20/20, CNN and major networks.

The presentation will be held from 9 a.m.-noon in the NSU Student Union Ballroom. Registration is free. Participants should RSVP ctreadwa001@student.nsula.edu.

The in-service is being provided courtesy of grand funds from a cyberbullying research grant that Dr. Perkins was awarded through the University of Louisiana System and Learn and Serve America.

The inservice organizers are College of Education faculty Dr. Gerra Perkins, Dr. Mary Lynn Williamson, Dr. Wendell Wellman and Dr. Nelda Wellman. The inservice is being provided courtesy of grant funds from cyberbullying research grant that Dr. Perkins was awarded from the UL System and Learn and Serve America.

On the first day of the Conference, a short keynote address was delivered by the Honorable Jimmy Long. NSU President Randall Webb and Dr. Lisa Abney greeted and welcomed the participants, as did Natchitoches Mayor Wayne McCullen. Dr. Darlene Williams provided a conference overview for both days, and introduced each speaker. Out-of-state speakers included Dr. David Campbell, with the National Science Foundation’s Division of Research on Learning in Formal and Informal Settings, who is program director of the “Advanced Technological Education” section of NSF and of “International Polar Year, 2007.” Dr. Campbell presented and explained grant opportunities available at NSF. The third speaker was Dr. Richard Dunfee, director of the Grants Resource Center (GRC) of the AASCU, who provided an overview of the plethora of grant opportunities available at all other federal agencies that sponsor research.

The second day of the conference again featured Dr. Dunfee, but with a different topic, i.e., “How to Write a Successful Grant Proposal.” After Dr. Dunfee’s presentation, Ms. Virginia Pinkney, senior program specialist at the U. S. Department of Education (USDOE) did an electronic presentation of grant opportunities available at USDOE. Following Ms. Pinkney’s presentation, three grant-program managers with the Louisiana Board of Regents Support Fund (BORSF) presented materials relating to BORSF Enhancement, R&D, Graduate Fellows, and ATLAS grant programs. The Conference concluded with concurrent round-table discussions between BORSF program managers and participating faculty. Representatives/presenters from the Louisiana Board of Regents included Ms. Noreen Lackett, Mr. Bryan Jones and Ms. Zenovia Simmons.

NSU’s Office of Research and Sponsored Programs (ORSP), TRED Division, is indebted to and would like to thank the following groups and individuals for helping to make the “NSU Regional Conference on Federal and State (LA) Grant Opportunities” a success: (1) Drake Owens and staff at the NSU Foundation; (2) Dr. Richard Dunfee and staff at the AASCU’s GRC; (3) Drs. Margaret Cochran and Jean D’Amato, Louisiana Scholars’ College; (4) Fred Terasa and staff at the Student Union; (5) Sodexo Food Services; (5) the Natchitoches Events Center staff; (6) Shawn Parr and Phillip Gillis of NSU Academic Services; and, finally (7) President Randall J. Webb, all NSU vice presidents, and their staff members.
Dr. Jeff Mathews, in his role as Commander of the Air National Guard Band of the Gulf Coast, was asked to lead a combined tour of the band and the United States Air Force Band of the West. The group began its tour in Norman, Okla., and presented concerts across northern Oklahoma and northern Texas. They concluded their tour with a July 4 performance of the National Anthem at a Texas Rangers’ Major League Baseball game. This is the first time that an Air National Guard Band and an active duty Air Force Band have combined for such a tour.

Regents praise COE for Alternative Certification

The College of Education was praised by the Louisiana Board of Regents for its outstanding work with teachers in the Alternative Certification Program. The program ranked in the two highest categories of the Louisiana Teacher Preparation Value-Added Assessment Report. Multiple Board of Regents members praised NSU’s long-standing commitment to excellence in developing Louisiana teachers.

Congratulations to Dr. Vickie Gentry and the College of Education faculty and staff who have worked so hard to assist our K-12 teachers.

NSU faculty and students collaborated on a service-learning and community development project to help build a house for the local Habitat for Humanity organization on Saturday, Sept. 19.

The day’s event was the first of three Habitat for Humanity building days scheduled for this semester. NSU students enrolled in Susan Barnett’s Psychology 1010 – Introduction to Psychology, and Steve Gruesbeck’s Psychology 2450 – Adjustment and Development, have the service-learning project embedded into these two course sections.

Participating NSU Faculty included Mike Cundall, Scholars’; Michael Yankowski and Phil Kidd, CAPA; Bobby Nowlin and Phil Brown, IET/EET; Barnett, psychology, and Gruesbeck, director of Service-Learning.

“Susan and I agree that this experience provides psychology students with early, meaningful opportunities to meet and collaborate with others,” Gruesbeck said.

A second building day was scheduled for Sept. 26 in which ceilings were stripped in preparation for drywall. Another is set for Nov. 7 in which siding will be installed. Faculty and staff with woodworking experience who are interested in volunteering can contact Gruesbeck at sgruesbeck@nsula.edu or by calling Ext. 5911.

LAATTC@NSU co-sponsors ASIST training

The Louisiana Addiction Technology Transfer Center at NSU (LAATTC@NSU) successfully co-sponsored the Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST) with the Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals Office of Mental Health and Office for Addictive Disorders on Sept. 10-11 in the NSU Student Union. The two-day training was provided through the Garrett Lee Smith Grant, Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals, and the support of the LAATTC@NSU with 22 participants from the state of Louisiana, including NSU faculty and staff.

The ASIST training model is an evidence-based model from Living Works based in Canada, and is widely used across the continents of Europe and North America. The training provided participants with the opportunity to understand the principles of this suicide intervention theory, as well as the ability to practice the techniques it incorporates.

“This training provided mental health and substance abuse professionals the opportunity to better serve their clients facing this particular issue,” said Dr. Jody Biscoe, director of the LAATTC@NSU.

The trainers of the workshop included Dr. Jody Meek and Don Pledger whose presentations were interactive, professional, and supportive of the diversity and levels of experience among the group. Upon the completion of the workshop, all participants were awarded certificates in Suicide First Aid Prevention. Participants were able to network collectively in efforts to increase the awareness and prevention of suicide.

If you or anyone you know is thinking of suicide, please contact our local Northwest Louisiana Local Suicide Helpline at (877) 994-2275.

News from the Dept. of Language and Communication

Dr. Allen Bauman and Dr. James Crank received the news in the spring of 2009 that their grant proposal “Strengthening New Concentration in Film Studies through a Departmental Film Library” had been funded by the Board of Regents for over $5,000. The proposal intended to provide support to the film studies concentration in the most practical way possible: by providing a film library for the department consisting of movies that have been requested by faculty as primary sources to be used in classes. The grant promotes the newly developed “Film Concentration” within our department’s major curriculum. Second, the departmental film library (the result of the grant monies) serves as a resource within the university, and will allow the expansion of our Master of Arts in Entertainment Technology. Finally, the Board of Regents’ grant also helps establish Northwestern State University and its Department of Language and Communication as one of the only sites for training for the constantly-expanding film industry in northern Louisiana. We hope to train and educate future directors, lighting designers, grips, and foley artists to work for Louisiana’s film industry.

Dr. James Crank received word that the manuscript for his article, “Racial Violence, Receding Bodies: James Agee’s Anatomy of Guilt” has been accepted for publication in the collection Agee at 100 (U of TN Press, 2010).

Dr. Julie Kane’s new poetry collection, JAZZ FUNERAL (Story Line Press, 2009) was launched this past summer with a reading on June 10 at the West Chester University Poetry Conference in West Chester, Penn. The book won the 2009 Donald Justice Poetry Prize, judged by David Mason. On June 18, there was a wine and cheese reception/signing for the book at The Book Merchant Book Shop in Natchitoches, attended by many NSU personnel. On July 11, Julie gave a reading in the Powow River Poets series at Jabberwocky Books in Newburyport, Mass. She also signed books afterward. July 25 brought a reading and book signing at the Garden District Book Shop in New Orleans, and the following weekend Julie read on a double bill with poet Robin Kemp at The Maple Leaf in New Orleans. Aug. 5 brought a reading before the “Young at Heart” group of the First United Methodist Church of Natchitoches at their monthly luncheon meeting.

Julie made appearances at the Southern Festival of the Book in Nashville on Sept. 9, where she read with poets Grace Bauer and Diann Blakely, and at the Louisiana Book Festival in Baton Rouge on Sept. 16, where she shared a bill with Darrell Bourque and Peter Cooley.

Also since the end of the spring semester, Julie introduced poet Ellen Bryant Voigt, the winner of the 2009 Poets’ Prize, at the Poets’ Prize awards ceremony May 21 at the Nicholas Roerich Museum in New York City, and interviewed Kiem Do, the co-author of her nonfiction Vietnam book (COUNTERPART: A SOUTH VIETNAMESE NAVAL OFFICER’S WAR) during a narrative stage session of the Natchitoches/NSU Folklife Festival on July 18. A poem from JAZZ FUNERAL, “Particle Physics,” was featured on Poetry Daily http://poems.com/poem.php?date=14500) and was read by Garrison Keillor on the Sept. 16 broadcast of Writer’s Almanac <http://writersalmanac.publicradio.org/> . You can purchase the book directly from the publisher here <http://www.wcupa.edu/_academics/sch_cas/poetry/JazzFuneral.asp> . Also, please visit Dr. Kane’s professional webpage here <http://www.juliekanepoet.com/> .

Thomas Reynolds delivered his paper “Derrida’s Post Card and the Erotic Triangle: Homosociality, Power, and Beyond” in March at the Louisiana Conference on Literature, Language, and Culture in Lafayette, where he earned the Darrell Bourque Award for the Most Outstanding Paper. Also in March, he travelled on an NEF grant to the Conference on College Composition and Communication in San Francisco, where he delivered his paper “Franklin’s Autobiography as a Model of Empirical Rhetoric.” Thomas ended the Spring 2009 conference season in April at the Popular Culture Association/American Culture Association national conference in New Orleans, LA, where he delivered his paper, “‘They’re Not Paternity Pants; They’re Fat Pants:’ The Growing Discourse of Maternity Literature for Men.”
